

10-Cent Hike In Tax Seen

Daly City taxpayers will probably be hit with a 10-cent tax hike this year, while experiencing a slight decrease in service, The Post has learned.

The increase, figured at 10 cents per $100 of assessed valuation on property, is needed to meet a large deficit in the city's projected operational budget for 1976-77, according to City Manager David Rowe.

Rowe initially proposed a 16-cent tax increase, but was instructed by the council to recalculate his budget and not go above 10 cents.

After much juggling, Rowe was able to drop his proposed tax rate increase to 10 cents, it was learned.

The manager's original operational budget was $6.8 million. This left a $600,000 deficit between expected outlay and income, Rowe said.

By using 50 per cent of the sales tax collected by the city for operational costs, rather than capital outlay projects, Rowe was able to cut the deficit by $135,000.

Another moneysaver is enforcement of a hiring freeze at city hall.

This indefinite freeze will leave 29 vacancies in various city departments, saving some $160,000, Rowe said.

Despite the tax rate hike, assignment of sales taxes and the hiring freeze, the city will still have to dip into its reserves for $250,000, Rowe said.

"We do not expect any major decrease in service as a result of this (hiring freeze)," Rowe explained.

The matter will be discussed by the council during a special meeting at 5 p.m. Wednesday at City Hall, 90th and Sullivan Avenues.

At that time, the council will also set employee salaries for the coming year.

Details concerning them were not revealed by city officials.

However, it was learned no employee agreements of understanding had, as yet, been signed.

Settlement of Strike Seen

Violence marked the apparent end of the 26-day warehousemen's strike Monday as a non union employee leaving the Crocker Industrial Park in Brisbane was beaten shortly after leaving work.

Hospitalized at Children's Hospital in San Francisco for treatment of a fractured skull was Paul Cardarelli, who was set upon by nine persons who beat him over the head with a baseball bat, according to police.

Police said Cardarelli, an employee of Curtin Matheson Co., 470 Valley Drive in the industrial park, had stopped at a red light when he was accosted from both sides by nine persons in two cars.

Two subjects with baseball bats allegedly began striking his car and breaking out the windows and then began beating the victim with the bat, wounding him in the head, arms and chest, police said.

Before the subjects fled leaving Cardarelli in the street, a third still inside one of the cars allegedly pointed a nickelplated revolver at the victim.

Cardarelli was taken to Kaiser Hospital in South San Francisco and later transferred to Children's Hospital where he is in satisfactory condition.

Sgt. John Majka and Officer R. H. Jackson are asking the public's help in identifying the suspects.

Meanwhile, the warehousemen and employer groups were voting on a three-year contract throughout the evening and remaining groups were to vote today.

The largest of the employer groups, the Industrial Employers and Distributors Association representing 175 companies employing 5,000 people, and the militant ILWU Local 6 have ratified the agreement and both sides consider ratification a virtual certainty.

Throughout the negotiations, the warehousemen and management had been in general agreement on a package that included an immediate 70-cent an hour increase, or 11.5 per cent. The base wage is $6.07.

The main disagreement was over the cost-of-living formula. The strikers wanted it to be an unlimited amount; management wanted it to have a cap.

Veteran 'Declares War' on The VA

By FRANK LaPIERRE

A veteran of World War II has declared war on the Veterans Administration over alleged poor conditions at the Golden Gate National Cemetery in San Bruno.

He is former T/Sgt. Vince Merlo, who fought in the Pacific Theater of Operations and whose wife is buried at the national shrine.

Merlo, today a successful tavern owner and civic leader in the North County, has started a one-man crusade to shape things up at the cemetery.

"It's more of a national disgrace than a national cemetery," Merlo said.

The outspoken Merlo said he has called attention of the alleged deterioration of the cemetery grounds to veterans groups, and at least one U.S. Congressman.

"Congressman Leo Ryan's office said they will investigate my charges," Merlo said. "And the representatives of the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) are also going to look at the area."

Merlo has been visiting his wife's grave since June 1952. She is buried in the lower section of the huge cemetery near El Camino Real.

On a recent visit to that area by this newspaper, it was observed that the entire section appears drought-stricken.

There is little grass and deep ruts across grave sites, apparently the result of large trucks driving over the graves.

Numerous graves had caved in and headstones had been nicked by equipment.

Merlo charged that the graves caved in when the large trucks, carrying 1500-pound cement vaults, are carted directly across the graves.

Cemetery Supt. John Spelman reluctantly discussed the matter with this newspaper recently.

Spelman first made it known "If you're going to put this (conversation) in the paper, then I'm not

Broadmoor Lieutenant Suspended

Broadmoor Police Lt. William J. "Jerry" Shaffer was relieved of duty Friday, pending outcome of a formal investigation into the shooting of his wife last week with his service revolver, Chief Merrill Baxley said this week.

Baxley announced last week that Mrs. Dorothy Shaffer was the victim of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound of the abdomen.

The incident occurred following a family argument, Baxley explained.

Mrs. Shaffer was reported today to be in satisfactory condition at Kaiser Hospital in South San Francisco.

Heading up the investigation team from the San Mateo County district attorney's office is Rex Smith.

Smith did not say when he would conclude the investigation.

TRUCKS TAKE 'SHORTCUTS'

Heavily laden trucks bearing concrete vaults take "shortcuts" across gravesites at Golden Gate. Truck shown sank up to its front wheel hubs while cutting across graves recently. Typical of the ragged condition of the lower section of the going to tell you (answers to questions).

The reason for the dried-out area is because of a recent water system breakdown in the lower sections of the cemetery, Spelman said, adding, much of the damage was done in May when San Francisco suffered from a lengthy employee walkout.

Golden Gate National Cemetery gets water from both San Bruno and San Francisco, according to Spelman.

San Bruno City Engineer Leo VanDusen said he knew of two 60-inch and one 50-inch San Francisco waterlines passing through the cemetery. But he was uncertain whether the cemetery tapped water from these three lines.

Van Dusen did acknowledge that San Bruno supplies water to the cemetery. "However, I've never seen a layout of their water system."

As for the graves caving in, Spelman said vaults for graves are optional at the cemetery. It was those graves where no vaults are installed that suffered cave-ins, he said.

Wasn't the use of a heavy truck loaded with cement vaults causing these cave-ins, Spelman was asked?

"How else would you get those vaults to a gravesite? That's the way cemeteries do it," Spelman said.

Things Have Deteriorated, Vet Says

Other Bay Area cemetery spokesmen disagreed. Ted Kimche, president of Skylawn Cemetery in San Mateo, said heavy trucks of the type used at Golden Gate Cemetery are never allowed to cross graves at Skylawn.

There are special "dollies" with low pressure, wide-thread tires which carry the vaults from the roadway to the graves.

Even concrete vaults, Kimche said, would not prevent heavy trucks from breaking through.

"They (the dollies) hardly cause a ripple in the grass," Kimche said.

Merlo things veterans and their families buried in the affected part of the cemetery — hundreds of them — are getting a shabby deal since the Veterans Administration took over the cemetery about two years ago.

At one time the cemetery was run by the Department of the Interior.

"Things seem to have gone downhill since the VA took over," Merlo said.

He has complained to cemetery representatives on several occasions about conditions, Merlo said.

"Each time they told me they were in the process of reseeding. They've been telling me that for a long, long time," he said.

Spelman said he's never heard of Merlo.

Wife of Chief Is Dead

Flo Baxley, the wife of Chief Merrill Baxley of the Broadmoor Police Department, died Monday night at Kaiser Hospital in South San Francisco after a long illness.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Lasswell Mortuary in Daly City.

Survivors include the couple's five children, Janet, Patsy, Vicky, Richard and Charles.

Mrs. Baxley, a waitress for 12 years at Val's Redwood Room in Daly City, is remembered by bar manager Lee Warren as a person of exceptional vitality.

"My main impression of her is that she was hardworking, a dedicated girl with many friends," he said. "She was always full of vim, vigor and vitality."

The ex-GI has never visited his office, nor complained to him, Spelman said.

And he contends his department is doing all in its power to keep the cemetery in tiptop condition.

How to be a 'Dream Girl'

By GEORGE GOLDING

"I feel on top of the world," said Kelli McKenney, this year's Miss San Mateo County Dream Girl as she was surrounded by photographers and well-wishers congratulating her on her new title.

Kelli, a brunette 5 feet 7 inches tall and 18 years old, represented Foster City and had been a crowd favorite since the 24th annual Dream Girl pageant began at the San Mateo County Fairgrounds.

"At first I said 'Oh, No,'" she said. "I couldn't believe it when Mike Cleary (the master of ceremonies) said it was me."

She said she had not expected to win, but that she had entered the Miss Foster City and Miss Dream Girl contests because "at this stage of life it is something to do."

And then she was surrounded by Foster City well-wishers. "Foster City did it," they shouted. "We finally got a winner."

A crew of national network television camera crew jockeyed for position, shoving local news photographers aside in their eagerness. They were filming a "special" for the "Beach Boys" singing group, the crowd was told, and Dennis Nelson, one of the Beach Boys, had been added to the normal panel of five judges.

During the warm evening he fanned himself with an official program, or leaned over and chatted with regular judge Monique Benoit, while his cameramen lensed his actions.

As usual, the pageant was attended by hundreds of San Mateo County residents, from fathers of the winners-to-be, to city and county politicians and Congressman Leo Ryan.

Behind the stage, as temperatures and tensions rose, Miss Belmont stood in a corner and wrung her hands.

"C'mon, it's not that bad," said a companion.

"Oh yes, it is," she answered. "I'm scared."

Minutes later, she was named "Miss Congeniality," the girl voted by the contestants as the one who had most helped others.

Judy Van Why, a graceful blonde from San Bruno, was named "second runner-up" in the contest and tall brunette Sylvia Wasmer of San Carlos was named "first runner-up."

The resident, Robert Gamble, was not at home at the time of the blaze, Centoni reported.

A neighbor first heard the sound of windows breaking, apparently from the intensity of the fire, and investigated.

When work crews from the Century Painting Co. arrived to put the finishing touches on a building they were painting in downtown San Bruno Tuesday morning they found someone had stolen their scaffolding.

The scaffolding — all three stories of it — had been removed from around the building during the night, police said.

Board Backs Center

A three-cent tax may be levied in the South San Francisco Unified School District to balance the proposed budget of the children's center.

The Board of Trustees has received a preliminary budget for the program at Ponderosa School which proposes spending $75,562 more than the $130,593 available for the program.

The board last Tuesday announced a firm commitment to fund the center and said it will decide by August, when the final 1976-77 budget is adopted, precisely how the center will be funded.

However, Associate Supt. Joe Smith said the three-cent tax per $100 of assessed valuation would be the most effective method of financing the center.

The South San Francisco children's center is the only such center between San Mateo and San Francisco.

Until this year, parents from any neighboring city in which there was not a children's center could send their own child to the South San Francisco center.

Dr. Lenore Jacobsen, Ponderosa principal, said the center this year was upgraded to include a learning readiness unit for the pre-school children.

In the 16-week block, the teachers devote two hours a day, three times a week to preparing the children for kindergarten.

The primary emphasis, Dr. Jacobsen said, is on language skills. By the time the children are in kindergarten, they already are familiar with letters of the alphabet.

Dr. Jacobsen said the learning-readiness is something State Schools Supt. Wilson Riles has been seeking for many years.

Within 10 years, she said, every California school district will have a children's center.

"We know from research that the younger the child, the more he can learn," Dr. Jacobsen said.

The past year was the first in which learning readiness was included in the pre-school format.

Dr. Jacobsen said the center will be accepting only SSFUSD children in

Detention Facility Hung Up on Costs

Money is the major roadblock to establishment of a permanent Pre-arraignment Detention Facility in the North County, the Daly City Mission Merchants Association has learned.

San Mateo County Supervisors John Ward and Edward Bacciocco both expressed support for the facility but hesitated to commit the Board of Supervisors to the proposal pending a complete analysis of operational costs.

Presently, the PDF is located in Daly City and operates under a federal grant program.

Since its inception two years ago, more than 10,000 persons have been processed through the jail.

Prior to establishment of the PDF, which is a joint venture of four North County cities, prisoners were transported to Redwood City and booked into the county jail.

This required at least one police officer to accompany a prisoner and took some two hours of "beat" time.

It also deprived the city of police protection while the officer was en route to and from Redwood City, attorney Hartley Appleton told the merchants.

"These people who pay taxes in the North County are just not getting the (police) protection they are paying for," Appleton said.

What prompted the appearance of the two supervisors at the meeting this past week was a recent declaration made by Mission Merchants Association president George Smith. He charged the North County cities "are being subjected to taxation without representation."

Smith cited the threat of closing the Daly City jail when funds run out later this year as one example of the county's lack of interest in local problems.

Social services also are limited in Daly City, Smith said.

Bacciocco said no one had "told me formally" that social services were insufficient in the North County.

And until they do, Bacciocco said, he hesitates to consider the issue.

Ward, on the other hand, pointed out that the North County has several ongoing social service programs, including mental health and some juvenile programs.

Ward said when he was campaigning for office he found it easy to promise more social services "but when you get down and analyze the annual county budget, it's easy for things to fade."

Rather than decentralize, the county will likely have to pull back and centralize services, Ward said.

Ward said he just did not know how the county, in the face of a tight budget this year, was going to provide more social services in the north.

Rather than build a new detention facility to replace the crowded Redwood City facility (which could cost upwards of $14 million), Ward said he thinks the North County needs a permanent pre-detention jail — to be operated under the San Mateo County Sheriff's Office.

"We must find a way to continue the (Daly City) PDF until we can make a final determination on a permanent facility," Ward said.

Ward said he also is pushing for toll-free telephone numbers to be installed in Redwood City.

At present, persons outside the Redwood City zone pay long distance rates, although they pay the same amount of tax that they do in Redwood City," Ward explained.

Bruno Survey Ordered

The City of San Bruno plans to conduct a house-to-house survey to determine if homeowners want their Sycamore trees removed at city expense.

The City Council authorized the survey Monday night as a prelude to establishing a tree and shrubbery ordinance designed to beautify city streets and to define responsibility for maintenance of tree foliage along city rights-of-ways.

A report on a possible tree and shrubbery ordinance, presented to the council by City Manager Gerald Minford, was referred to the Parks and Recreation Commission for comment.

The city will conduct its survey in all neighborhoods where Sycamores have been planted. The trees will be removed only with the permission of the homeowner.

According to Minford, many residents have complained that the Sycamore is a bothersome tree, because it grows quickly and sheds many leaves.

Some of the residents appeared at the council meeting to complain about the trees.

The leaves, the residents maintained, clog sewer lines and force homeowners to spend a lot of time raking.

"The Sycamores have just got to go," one resident, Matt Jones, told the council.

Minford reported that there are some 1,100 Sycamores in San Bruno. He said the trees are on the top of his "forbidden tree list," which may become part of an ordinance he believes should be enacted by the council.

The city manager is urging the council to adopt a policy to provide orderly planting and maintenance of street trees in the city.

He said that about 75 per cent of all the street trees are causing damage of one kind or another — clogging drains, uprooting sidewalks, driveways, curbs and gutters; damaging underground utilities. "It is clear that a program must be established," said Minford, "to correct the problems (the trees and shrubs) have caused in the past and to create a new program which over a period of time will lead to a more attractive community."

Minford said there is a need to reaffirm that property owners are responsible for maintaining street trees.

In the past, the city has trimmed the trees for the homeowners. Although some disgruntled residents shouted at the council Monday that the trees belong to the city and not them, and that the city should continue to maintain them, City Atty. Joseph Galligan replied that at no time did the city plant any street-side trees. He said the trees were planted by the developers of the city subdivisions.

Final Touch to SM County Radio System

County supervisors Tuesday put the final local touch on a rare countywide agreement involving all but one city to implement a new ultra-high frequency law enforcement radio communication system.

The supervisors endorsed the plan for the county and adopted a financing plan which has the county paying for one-half of the $568,000 local share. Eighteen jurisdictions will share the cost of the other half.

The balance of the $1.3 million project, expected to take three years, will be paid by federal grants through the Criminal Justice Council.

Police chiefs have lamented that the communication systems for law enforcement are woeful.

Redwood City Manager James M. Fales told supervisors that the systems "are 30 years archaic."

All but Pacifica have agreed to participate, according to authorities. Budget difficulties there are the problem, Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald said.

County Manager M. D. Tarshes said that the new system will require less operating expense and less maintenance.

Shifting to the new radio band will free up existing crowded radio frequencies shared by fire departments, public works crews and others.

But more important, according to police officials, is that for the first time each department in the county will be able to communicate directly with other departments, as well as with their own colleagues.

Supervisors Tuesday also took two actions affecting the controversial Participatory Records and Information System (PRISM), another intended countywide project.

The project is designed as a four to five-year effort to computerize criminal justice records and data and would be operated on a shared-cost basis.

Supervisors authorized a $15,000 agreement with Stanford Research Institute for consultation with the training of PRISM personnel.

County Manager M. D. Tarshes assured supervisors that they could scrap the project after the two-year study period, which ends next year.

Purpose of the two-year period is to allow the development and testing of the system using available data and to allow time for a more detailed cost-benefit analysis that would provide all cities and the county with additional information needed to make a decision on whether to continue the project.

Twelve cities and the county have endorsed PRISM. Belmont and Atherton disapprove and Daly City, Pacifica, and Redwood City have not taken positions.

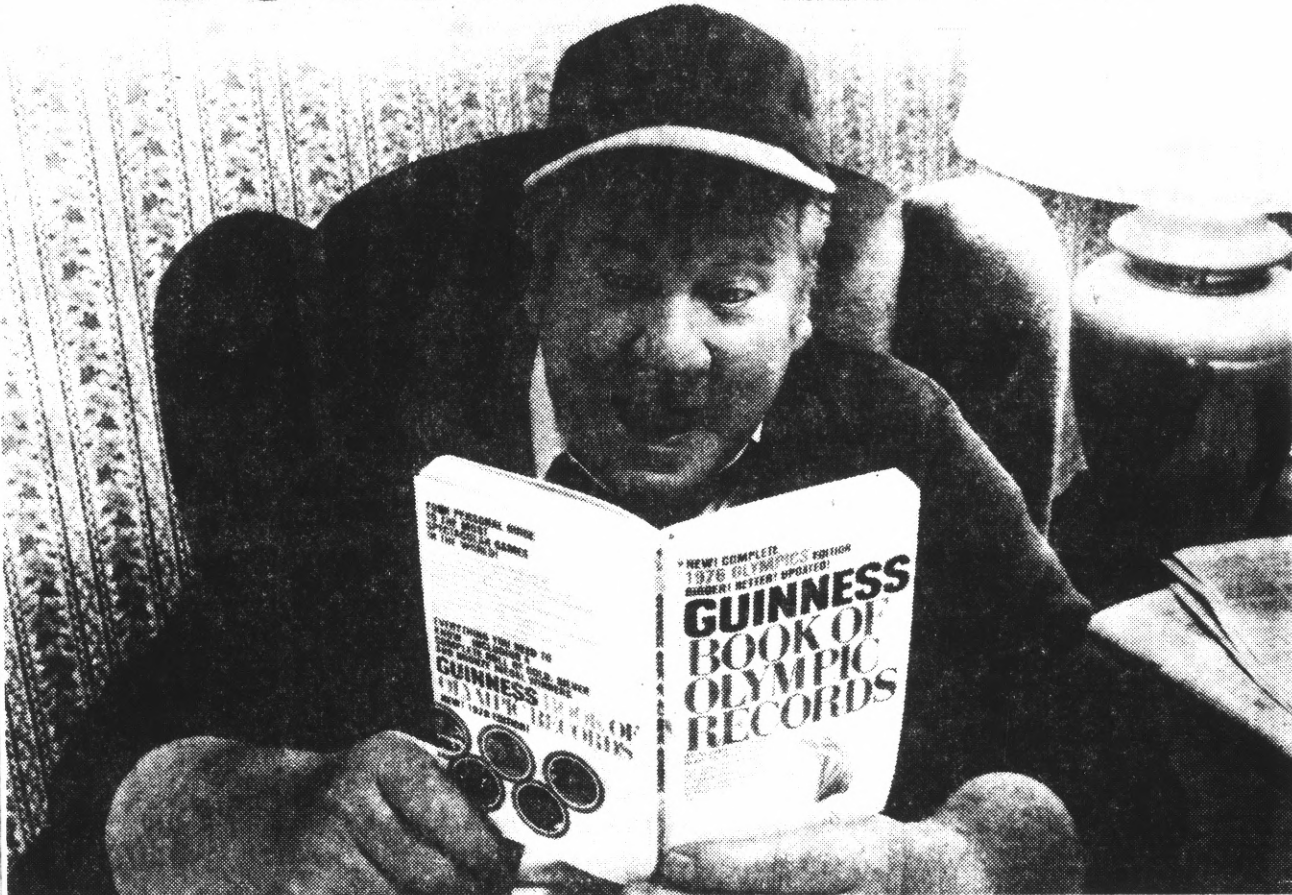

Supervisors also decided the type of membership for the project's program guidance committee and the committee on security and privacy.

Supervisor John Ward said that the two concerns about PRISM are cost and privacy.

Council Protests Tax-Free Land

By RICK SULLIVAN
The San Bruno Planning Department is drafting a letter to U.S. Senator John Tunney expressing the City Council's concern that prime commercial land in the city is being gobbled up by government agencies.

Councilmen are grappling with a stringent budget this year — considering a possible 20-cent tax rate increase — and are somewhat angered that their available commercial land is being used by non-property tax — and sales tax-generating agencies.

Government property is not assessed by the county and thus contributes nothing to the city tax base.

San Bruno Planning and Building Director William Kelly said some 32 per cent of all the land in the city is owned by government — municipal, county, federal and school districts.

The council feels we are absorbing at an increasing rate government land in our jurisdiction, said Kelly.

The government is buying prime commercial land and then consulting us after the purchase, he added. We would like to be consulted before the purchase.

This is the second time San Bruno officials have written their elected officials in Washington complaining about the government's presence in the city.

The ire of the council was raised two years ago when the U.S. Postal Service decided to buy a 32-acre parcel and a nine-story office building at Bayhill Office Park to be used as its western regional headquarters.

Although the council had approved plans for an office building on the property, it had no idea the developer of the project, L. W. Douglas Jr., would ultimately sell the building and property to the Postal Service.

What has renewed the council's concern over government-owned land in the city is a recent decision, again by the Postal Service, to construct a new San Bruno post office on a parcel of land it purchased near the corner of Huntington and Citation, near Tantor Park Shopping Center.

Councilmen said they recognize there is a need for a new post office, but they are questioning the choice of location of the building. They also are irritated that the Postal Service failed to consult the city before it bought the land.

The councilmen are aware that there is no way a municipality can stop the federal government from doing just about anything, but what they are asking is that government try to cooperate with the city.

The Postal Service has indeed kept the city informed of plans for the new post office. In fact, representatives of the Postal Service have appeared numerous times before the Planning Commission and the City Council.

Some suggestions, such as one concerning landscaping, have been implemented by the agency.

The council, however, is not wholly pleased with the design of the new building. At least two councilmen, Tony Governale and Gary Mondirans, have publicly stated that they will take their concerns to their federal representatives.

The Postal Service wants to build a 22-foot high, 17,000-square-foot building primarily of concrete.

Architects for the projects have stated that they want to texture the concrete to give it a corrugated appearance.

The building also is highlighted by metal fascia, which according to plans, will be colored blue.

The council specifically is objecting to the color of these fascia. Councilmen would like them to be painted in earth-tone colors, such as rust, orange or brown.

In the past, the architects have been reluctant to change the colors.

Now, however, Kelly said city officials, including Councilman Governale and City Manager Gerald Minford, have begun discussions with Postal Service representatives and the architects, and it appears the colors might be changed.

We are becoming optimistic about the negotiations, Kelly said.

EIR for Bike Park Ratified

A draft environmental impact report for that controversial proposal for a motorcycle park in Pescadero was ratified as acceptable Wednesday by county planning commissioners.

Applicant Don Ivan next faces a use permit hearing, probably in July, to finally determine whether he can initiate a park and accessory activities on 750 acres of the 1,200-acre Knob Hill Ranch off Pescadero Road.

The virtues and detriments of the project were again debated for nearly two hours. A final EIR is to be presented at the time of the permit hearing.

The planners already have approved the project in concept, but are expected to attach some 50 or more conditions at next month's hearing.

Among the proposed conditions will be a limit of 35 motorcycles on the trails at any given time, and a limit of 300 persons on the land.

The project, opposed by some Pescadero residents, has been supported by many cyclists who have lamented that they have nowhere to ride in San Mateo County.

Strike— Air Board Has Two Vacancies

increase of a minimum of 45 cents and a maximum of 70 cents June 1 in 1977 and 1978. The cost-of-living thus was capped at 25 cents.

Management also was successful at blocking promotional seniority, voluntary overtime and payment for holidays if the employees worked either the day before or the day after a holiday. Presently the employee must work both days to receive holiday pay.

The warehousemen also received additional dental benefits and pension rights varying from local to local.

Applicants are being sought to fill two vacancies on the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District's advisory council.

Candidates for the non-paying positions should represent a regional park district or a private organization active in conservation or the protection of environment.

The 20-member Advisory Council meets quarterly at District headquarters at 939 Ellis St., San Francisco.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Midnight Dinner At Phil Lehr's

PHIL LEHR'S elegant new STEAKERY, at the Taylor and Ellis entrance of the San Francisco Hilton Tower (bottom of the tower), is one of the few fine San Francisco restaurants that serves dinner until midnight. It's a favorite late evening gathering place for the theater crowd and celebrities of the international Jet Set. CISCO and BOSTON MASON, two multi-talented gents who have worked for VINCE RUSSO for several years, remain the headliners in the lounge of THE EGGPLANT, in Burlingame. The Masons and their group present the dance sounds nightly, Tuesday through Saturday. At Russo's DISTILLERY, in San Bruno, a new band has been signed to entertain on Friday and Saturday nights. Good news from the BAYHILL LOUNGE: HARRY CURRIS and MEL CICERO are happy to report that five new luncheon items have been added to their menu, which should delight the dining trade. Serving lunches only, plus beverages, of course. So get with it. Day in and day out, NICK GUST'S three Rockaway Beach restaurants, THE MOONRAKER, NICK'S and CAPTAIN CHARLES, attract capacity business. Serving excellent food with the Pacific Ocean as a backdrop and plenty of doordoor parking space has more than a little to do with it. Pretty ROBERTA THOR-BURN is the friendly hostess greeting patrons during Sunday Brunch service at the exotic CASTAWAY, at Coyote Point. Brunch always includes choices from the bountiful island fruit table. Special menu prices for children, too. YOLANDA'S, in South San Francisco, will be featuring Roast Sirloin of Beef for $4.95 or Roast Chicken and Stuffing for $3.95 as a holiday special on July 4 and 5. Owner BOB McLANE says dinners include soup and salad, pasta, potatoes, vegetables, and a glass of complementary wine.

FINOCCHIO'S MAESTRO

Bill Bullard, pianist at Finocchio's, is an accomplished arranger and composer, as well as being the leader of the band at this world famous club. Joining Bullard as the backbone of the four shows nightly, except Mondays, are Ed Gorman on the sax and "Shep" Shepherd on drums.

Canterbury Hotel Has London Cab

If you collect cars, or just want to have one of those intriguing London Taxi cabs for your very own, here's a tip: MURRAY LEHR, gregarious managing director of San Francisco's Canterbury Hotel and adjacent LEHR'S GREENHOUSE Garden Restaurant, has one of those classic London taxi cabs for sale. If interested, call Canterbury Manager JIM HAMILTON (474-6464). Years ago, ENRICO ROMANO, the Rockaway Beach Italian and pizza Midas, spent many happy hours and dollars at LUZ GARCIA'S San Francisco SINALOA. Miss Garcia is now retired and visits Enrico's restaurant frequently for dinner. Some weeks ago it was itemed in one of the newspapers that during a recent stint at Circle Star Theater, BENNY GOODMAN enjoyed Chinese food every night at a certain restaurant. If so, Goodman must have eaten two dinners on certain evenings, as he was also a steady at SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S, in Redwood City, with prime ribs of beef being the order of the evening. Following a short vacation, VINCE'S ITALIAN and SEAFOOD restaurant will reopen for business on July 6. Which means you can unwind from July Fourth after-effects with a big blow-out. The Big Band sound of ROY ORBISON'S ORCHESTRA will be featured in concert at HYATT LAKE TAHOE, Incline Village, Nevada, on July 2, 3 and 4. Two shows nightly (8 and 11:30 p.m.) All seats are $8.50. For further information, call (702) 831-1111.

Fiesta a County Fair

By IVA NEWMAN

The San Mateo County Floral Fiesta is the San Mateo County Fair. All county fairs feature the main income crops and in San Mateo County flowers bring in several million dollars a year. With flowers the major crop, the San Mateo County Floral Fiesta has little difficulty in being the most beautiful fair in the state.

A fair is for people too. Anyone may participate. For amateurs there is no entry fee. Participation is a lot of fun. All it takes is a cut flower or a plant and you have a chance of winning both ribbons and money. We have friends that plan on winning enough prize money to pay for a year's supply of fertilizer each year. Another prizes the ribbons he wins and pins them on the walls of his office.

Entering is a simple procedure. The first step, and a very important one, is to get the entry in before the "deadline." This year all amateur floricultural entries must be in by July 5. The entries must be made on official blanks furnished by the San Mateo County Fair and they must be signed by the entrant. These blanks can be picked up at the Fair office, 2495 South Delaware, San Mateo. Be sure to pick up a premium book so you will know the category where your entry will be placed. For instance, suppose you have a white hybrid tea rose. It will go in Division 55—Cut Flowers, Class 22 and if you win a blue ribbon you will win $3.50.

It is very important to read the instructions for both the Division and the class. The Division rules say the exhibit must be in place by 8:30 a.m., July 26 and each exhibitor may make but one entry per class. Class 22 calls for the rose to be disbudded and that a white, near/white, yellow and yellow blend rose will be competing in the same class.

3 Judgings
There are three judgings at the Fiesta. The first is July 26, the second, July 30, and the third, August 3. Entries for all three judgings must be made by July 5. This early entry date is because all the entries must be put on judging sheets before the date the Fair opens. The Fair office must also have all the entry cards for all the exhibitors ready so the exhibitors can pick them up when they bring their entries in. The table for the entries is usually in the doorway between the amateur and the commercial section of the Hall of Flowers. If this is the first time you have exhibited, it might be wise to consult one of the chairmen of your division as to where you should place your entry and be sure to tell her that you are a first time exhibitor.

There is only one judging for plants in containers but there are five divisions. Plants in containers must be left for the duration of the Fiesta. Plants must be in place for judging by 7 p.m. on Sunday, July 25. This year all potted plants must be named and labeled. If you don't know the correct name for your plant take it to your nursery and get one of their Certified Nurserymen to name it for you. Get the botanical name as this is the only one the judges accept as correct. Be sure to have the correct pot size. All measurements are made on the inside at the top of the pot. Underliners, or saucers, must be provided by the exhibitor for each pot. Be sure to clean the pots so they don't detract from the plant. This is important as a dirty pot will cost you points that may lower your prize money.

Assigned To Castle AFB
March AFB is the new assignment of Air Force Capt. George J. Sakaladasis, whose mother is Mrs. Christa Sakaladasis of 155 Knowles Ave., Daly City.

Capt. Sakaladasis, an air operations officer, was assigned to March from Castle AFB. He will be working with the Fifteenth Air Force.

The captain, who holds the aeronautical rating of senior navigator, is a 1962 graduate of Jefferson Union High School.

He received his B.A. degree from San Francisco State College where he was commissioned in 1966 through the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program. He earned his M.A. degree in 1975 at Golden Gate University extension at Castle.

Division 56 calls for collections. When assembling a collection of the same type of plant, try to have the pots and the plants of uniform size. This is not possible when the collection is made up of cacti or succulents but do try to have them as uniform as possible.

Must Be In Bloom
Division 57 is for flowering plants grown in a container. The plants must be in bloom or points will be withheld. Division 58 is for foliage plants in containers. There are 27 classes in this division so go over it carefully to enter your plant in the right class. This division is for outdoor plants. Division 58—A is for indoor plants and here the pot size is limited to 8 inches, inside measurement. Be sure to notice that Classes 1, 2 and 3, for African Violets only permit 6-inch pots.

Division 59 is for Bonsai. Be sure to read the measurements as each class calls for a different size. When placing your Bonsai entry make sure the front of the plant is facing outward so the judges can see the front. Rules forbid judges from touching plants or pots so they have clerks move the plant or hold it so they can see the front. If space is not available to place the Bonsai correctly, leave a note stating there wasn't sufficient room and request the judges to ask the clerk to place it so that it may be judged from the front.

The exhibitor is responsible for caring for his own plants. This should be done before the Fiesta is opened to the public. Opening time is 6 p.m. on July 26 (opening day) Monday through Friday opening time is 12 noon Saturday and Sunday opening time will be 10 a.m. Closing time is 10 p.m. Be sure to ask for an admission card that will let you come in before opening time. Ask what gate is to be used so you can park nearby. It is wiser to park outside the grounds or you may have to move your car outside before you have finished your work.

One of the big benefits of being an exhibitor is being able to see the exhibits at your leisure and to visit with other exhibitors. It is also the best time to take pictures as there is no waiting for the public to move along.

Pacifica Film Fest Starting This Week

The Pacifica Library will hold a July Film Festival for children. All films are to be shown on Fridays at 3:30 p.m. at the Pacifica Library at Hilton and Palmetto.

The films are suitable for all ages, but pre-schoolers should be accompanied by older brothers or sisters or adults.

The films to be shown on July 2 are "Johnny Appleseed," an animated Disney version of the American folk tale; "How to Have an Accident in the Home," a Donald Duck short; and "Anatole," another animated story.

On July 9 "The Little Mermaid" will be shown. It is an animated Disney version of the Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale.

"The Stuntman," a film on the life of a stuntman, and "The World is Born," a Disney version of the birth of the earth including dinosaurs and erupting volcanoes, will be seen on July 16.

July 23 will have "The Great Bubble Conspiracy" and the Dr. Seuss cartoon, "The Lorax." An animated and real life Disney film showing the life cycles of birds, plants and insects through the four seasons called "Nature's Half Acre" will be shown on July 30.

Foster City July Show Scheduled

A one-man show will be presented through July by Serop Vardanian, a Daly City artist, at the Foster City Museum Gallery. A prelude party featuring Armenian food and wine will be open to the public July 9. The exhibition, sponsored by the Bicentennial Commission of Foster City, is entitled "America the Beautiful."

Have you always had a secret yearning to take part in a soap box derby? Lots of adults watch the excitement of the pre-teen event each year with a wistful "I wish I could have done that when I was a kid." Well, if you are one of those wistful dreamers, it is not too late!

Mrs. Rudy Enberg, the executive director of the local unit of Friends Outside, reports that there is a real need for adults to help soap box hopeful prepare for the regional event to be held in Vallejo on July 11.

"Friends Outside," which concerns itself with the families of men and women in prison, has ten boys and girls who need people to help them read blueprints, assemble their cars, and gather equipment. Mrs. Enberg reports that the youngsters need sponsors. It would be exciting for the children if they were sponsored by an independent merchant or company rather than by the Friends Outside chapter, and they need helmets, light blue pants and special T shirts.

Adults who help the contestants will enjoy the vicarious thrill of seeing their young friends compete and the satisfaction of knowing that without their help there would have been no way for these particular children to enjoy this typical American sport.

If you feel you would enjoy this project call 863-5100 and the volunteers will help put you in contact with an eager soapbox derby hopeful.

Mrs. Emily Sumrall, president of the Balboa High School Alumni Association, reports that the annual alumni picnic will be held in the San Mateo Park on August 8.

Plans call for a mini-carnival, games and loads of fun. Anyone interested in more details is urged to call Mrs. Ben Sumrall.

Mrs. Robert Brizuela, publicity chairman for Our Lady of Mercy parish, reports that the church's big red, white and blue fireworks booth is in place on the corner of Lake Merced Boulevard and Southgate Avenue in the Westlake Shopping center, and doing a "booming" business!

Expecting a memmouth demand during this Bicentennial year, the chairmen, Mrs. James McCann and Harry Kanelopoulos, have stocked the booth with a huge selection of fireworks which they hope to sell so that the proceeds can augment the parish building fund.

The booth is open daily from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m.

Mary's Help Hospital Guild members can spend the summer stocking up on nickels, dimes and quarters as a second trip to Nevada is being planned.

September is the tentative date for an overnight trip to Reno, outing according to Mrs. Virginia Stanghellini, guild president. Members made a similar junket in January as a means of winding down and relaxing after the busy holiday season. The September trip will be a way for everyone to get reacquainted and relax together a while before the business of sponsoring the Christmas boutique gets underway.

Preparing for their first club outing will be new members, Mrs. Robert Durnal Mrs. Carmella Guardaldi, Mrs. Jacqueline Lewis and Mrs. Owen O'Neill.

Early American style refreshments, patriotic music and a sermon celebrating the history of Christianity in the United States will combine to provide a special service for worshippers at Lakeside Presbyterian Church on July 4.

The service will begin at 10 a.m. and be followed by a reception and slide show of historical sites within the original 13 colonies. Mrs. Martha Kunstorff is chairing the event.

Seniors Travel

The Daly City Senior Citizen Club, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department, are really a traveling group.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Laskey returned from a European trip to Holland and Switzerland; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cigard from a trip to the Middle West; Kathryn Robinson from New York; and Laura Madding from Japan.

Also a busload of members just returned from a one-week trip to Portland for the annual Rose Festival.

Many members are also looking forward to the one-day trip through Sonoma and on to Occidental for lunch.

Traveling is not the only pastime: the club members are now making plans for their Annual Bazaar in October and a special Christmas project.

In July they will celebrate a belated Fourth of July and in August, they will hold their annual picnic at Huddart Park.

Samuel Chandler

During a recent hearing before the Daly City City Council someone representing a group that calls itself a minority challenged the City Fathers with these words. "What have you done for us?"

To this a councilman responded, "We have provided you with streets, police and fire protection, libraries and other services just as we have done for all the people of our community."

"But that's not enough for us," someone called from the audience. He then stood with others and made a plea for more social benefits, listing among them health care, job security, day care centers, free rides and free meals for the aged and several more projects that strike at problems that beset Americans.

Some people who attended the hearing came away asking such questions as, "When did the 'get it from the government' philosophy take over this country?" And, "How come immigrants expect things from the government that the government has never been expected to provide?"

Perhaps it is time to recall the words of Harry Truman who said that Americans have responsibilities that "test our courage, our devotion to duty, and our concept of liberty."

Maybe it is time to note with the authors of the grand old "International Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences" that critics have pointed out that, "The welfare state is the omniscient state, pre-empting the private effort through which individuals achieve moral stature by helping each other: sapping initiative, codding the inferior, and ultimately regimenting everyone."

In other words, those of Donald M. Morrison (Time 99:30-1, Feb. 14, 1972), "The role of government is fast growing larger — as savior, subsidizer, owner, regulator, decision maker." If this is to be the role of government, if the welfare state rides the wave of the future, let those who foster its coming remember that they must do more than "just receive."

They must develop a sense of social conscience and learn the meaning of social justice. Without these things we cannot regulate the government and perpetuate its strong points.

LET PEOPLE WHO want many new things from the government learn with Max J. Herzberg that, "This country was founded by the bold and cannot be maintained by the timid."

Herzberg continues, "We have attained a tradition of liberty based upon an insistence on courage and work, a dream of a perfect world, a belief in education as the bulwark of our institutions, a yearning for peace . . . a constant resort to humor that has made innumerable difficulties and annoyances more tolerable."

By work and by courage — not by governmental decree nor by demands because of ethnic backgrounds or sex — Americans can provide a fair deal for its people.

Perhaps it should be required for all residents of America to learn of her ideals by reading such books as "This is America" by Max J. Herzberg or "The American Treasury" by Clifton Fadiman.

In both volumes the people who made the United States talk to the residents of today. From both books statesmen, literary lights and just common people speak of social justice, of freedom, of responsibility, of their greatest fears and of their fondest hopes. Their hopes constitute some of the best reading that can be found.

Leo Ryan Proposes National River Bill

Congressman Leo J. Ryan, (D-San Mateo), announced that he has co-sponsored the new Potomac National River Bill, introduced in the House by Rep. Gilbert Gude, (R-Md.).

Ryan, Chairman of the Conservation, Energy, and Natural Resources Subcommittee of the House Committee on Government Operations termed the legislation "vital to preserving the great heritage of the Potomac River."

The bill would protect from development the south shoreline of the Potomac from Washington to Cumberland, complementing the wider Chesapeake and Ohio (C&O) Canal National Historic Park on the north shore.

Ryan noted that adverse development along the shoreline is an immediate and persistent threat, and expressed hope that the legislation would move swiftly through Congress thus "assuring our generation and future generations enjoyment of the river's important scenic and recreational values."

The bill includes a provision directing the Secretary of the Interior to develop plans for the river shores above Cumberland, including rehabilitation of strip-mined land and other areas.

The Secretary must also develop a plan for the lower river below Washington, with respect to historic preservation and restoration, conservation, scenic protection, and providing public recreational opportunities.

In regard to the history of the region, Ryan noted that during the Civil War, troops from the 1st California Volunteers protected the Maryland side of the River northwest of Washington, D.C. from the Confederate incursions.

The Unpredictable Future of Fortune-Telling

By JANET PARKER

It would take a powerful crystal ball to forecast what will happen next to the fortune-telling trade in San Mateo County.

Since a 1973 county Superior Court decision in their favor, palm readers in particular have been demanding — and in most cases receiving — the right to practice their ancient trade.

But it's doubtful that city councils and police departments have heard the last of the fortune-telling controversy.

Three cities — Millbrae, Brisbane and Burlingame — still maintain a $100-a-day license fee (as much as $36,500 a year; for anyone who wants to tell fortunes, read palms or predict the future through any means for a living).

Daly City may face a court battle from a couple who believe that the city's new ordinance prohibiting fortune-telling is unconstitutional.

South San Francisco permitted one palmist to open studio doors earlier this year despite community protests. The City Council still hasn't adopted an ordinance formally regulating that business or any similar fortune-telling ventures.

In fact, conflicting court opinions throughout the state make the whole legal position of fortune-telling as clear as reading tea leaves in a glass of mud.

The 1973 decision struck down as unconstitutional a Menlo Park ordinance that banned entirely the kinds of businesses that gypsies and some others pursue.

However, other ordinances prohibiting fortune-telling arts have been upheld by the courts. One such ordinance out of Orange County was upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court only a few years ago.

But the Menlo Park decision started the crystal ball rolling throughout the county.

"The whole question as to the extent to which fortune-telling activities can be regulated is very much up in the air," said Jack Jorgensen, Menlo Park city attorney.

Jorgensen said that after the decision by Judge Frank Blum, Menlo Park set a $180-a-year license fee for fortune-telling businesses. The city did not appeal to a higher court.

Other cities since 1973 — particularly in the North County — have been devising ways to comply with the court decision and satisfy members of the community who are apprehensive about fortune-telling.

Ordinances recently adopted in Pacifica and San Bruno include fingerprinting, photographing and extensive police checks of all those who want to engage in the business.

If the palm reading applicant previously worked in San Francisco, the local police department will check his or her record there. If there had been many complaints against the applicant in that previous business location, the local city would most likely turn down the application.

One police chief noted that with gypsies in particular, it is often difficult to trace their police records since their names often change.

While the average businessman pays an annual license fee of $25 to $100 a year, palm readers in Pacifica, San Bruno and San Mateo, for example, pay $500 a year to predict the future.

The reason? Police department and city officials traditionally regard the fortune-telling trade as a community risk with a long history of fraudulent activities.

"Any type of clairvoyant business seems to draw the unfortunate individual who seeks in this way an answer to a real problem and is willing to pay for it," said Pacifica Police Chief Mel Nelson.

A business with a history of complaints of fraudulent activity requires extra investigatory time by the police Department. That's why the cities are charging higher than normal license fees, he said.

"When you have a business of that type where there have been complaints over frauds or morals, it takes a fairly substantial fee to defray some of the costs of monitoring and controlling," Nelson said.

He referred to a recent case in Florida where a trusting husband followed a palmist's advice to sprinkle rose petals over his wife as she lounged in the bathtub — a recommended procedure to break a curse and change her plans for a divorce.

He tried it and it didn't work. Now he's charging fraud and wants his $600 back.

South San Francisco Police Chief James Datzman said law enforcers would not be concerned if palmistry were a simple matter of individuals paying $5 or $10 for a service.

"Traditionally, the business has not operated that simply," Datzman said.

Datzman said if a wood-be palm reader is willing to make the $500 investment to practice his art, "He must have some degree of responsibility."

No one can recall a specific case of fraud connected with a fortune-telling business in a San Mateo County city.

District Atty. Keith Sorenson, however, said there were some problems in the county's unincorporated areas about 20 years ago.

"We thought it was necessary to have a high degree of screening of applicants," Sorenson said. As a result, anyone who wants to tell fortunes in county territory must pay an annual license fee of $2,400.

Palm readers in the North County refuse to comment on their business, the laws which govern their trade or anything about the fortune-telling industry.

But attorney Boyd Williams, who has represented gypsies interested in palm reading in Pacifica, Daly City and South San Francisco, said the regulation of the fortune-telling trade is still a live issue.

"It's a question of whether or not these individuals — not just gypsies — should be forced to pay a higher fee to earn a living," Boyd said. "I don't think it's right."

A reasonable licensing fee, in effect, is a compromise, he said. The stringent regulations permit anyone who truly wants to practice fortune-telling and is on the level to do so.

Boyd said fees of $100 a day as charged in some cities are "unquestionably" illegal.

"Even in cities where new ordinances have been adopted, they have recognized the fact that such a fee is discriminatory and would not withstand the test of a court case," he said.

Many cities, he said, have irrational laws on record but until they are challenged, they remain law.

Boyd recently led his clients — Jack and Helen Adams — to challenge Daly City's fortune-telling laws.

As a result, that city adopted a regulatory ordinance that disallows fortune-telling for the purpose of making money.

The Adamses, he said, may take the city to court or they might work around some provisions in the new ordinance. For example, the ordinance exempts religious groups. Boyd said it might be possible for potential fortune-tellers to form a bona fide religious group and be exempt from the city's new law.

"There are definite avenues that will be explored," he said.

Daly City city attorney Al Polonsky said he firmly believes his city's new fortune-telling ordinance is satisfactory.

In overruling the Menlo Park ordinance, Judge Blum said the law on the books there was too vague but not necessarily unconstitutional, Polonsky said.

San Bruno Police Chief Russell Cunningham said his city had an ordinance prohibiting fortune-telling until a prospective fortune-teller protested. The City Council then established a regulatory ordinance that sets a $500 annual license fee and the woman is now in business.

It took Sonia Williams several months to find a South San Francisco site for her palm reading business that met the approval of skeptical residents, the Planning Commission and the City Council.

The City Council finally voted 3-2 to approve a studio on El Camino Real where "Madam Carla" — as she is known professionally — has been in business since March.

Boyd said the gypsies laughed at the South San Francisco outcome. The council, he said, exiled Sonia Williams from the secluded downtown area she originally requested to well traveled El Camino Real — probably the best location in the county.

Pacifica just adopted an ordinance that also sets a $500 annual fee and regulatory provisions at the request of a gypsy family.

Pacifica City Atty. Gloria Scheid said she believes it would be difficult for a court today to uphold an outright prohibition of fortune-telling in California, so the city relented.

It's traditional in the gypsy culture that once a fortune-telling studio is established in a city, no other gypsies will invade that territory.

Boyd pointed out that his own clients are very concerned about the public image of their business.

He said he was present one night when a group of gypsies got together and discussed the future of fortune-telling in this county.

"The Adams family is well established in this county," Boyd said.

Their children are in the schools and they have lived in Northern California for years, he said.

In fact, in many respects they prefer high fees because they feel their own family has a good name and they don't want other "fly-by-night fortune-tellers" to bring the profession into disrespect by their actions.

They only want the right to earn a living without unfair restrictions, he said.

"They really don't want every Tom, Dick and Harry fortune-teller moving into town," he said.

Session With Madam Carla

'Reading' the Future

By JANET PARKER

There's something disillusioning about a palm reading studio that's sandwiched between a mom and pop grocery store and an abandoned coffee shop on El Camino Real.

Romantic visions of mysterious long-nailed fortune-tellers with dangling earrings and stars tattooed on their cheeks are shattered.

In fact, fortune-telling gypsies have come a long way from the caravan tents. Now, it's a good chance the palmistry patron is a housewife with children in tow or even a curious city official on a lunch break.

This reporter set out to discover why fortune-telling is attracting suburbanites of all kinds.

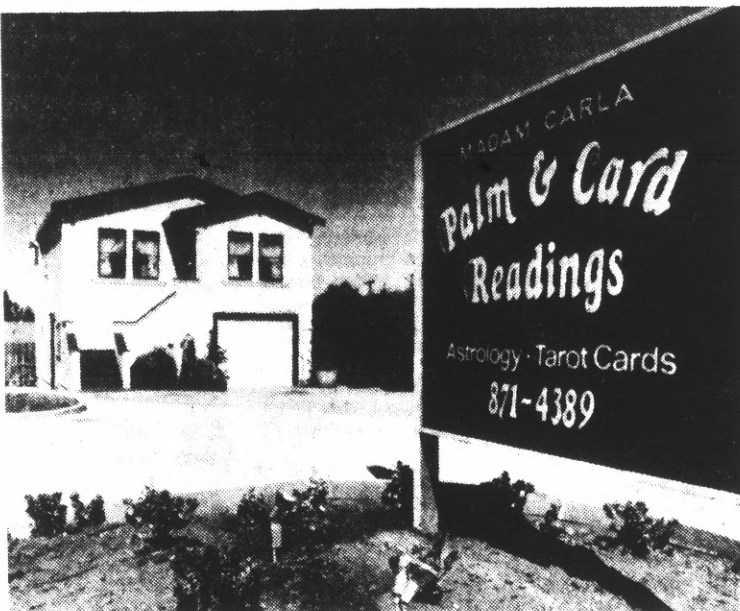

Fortune-tellers, I soon learned, aren't amenable to publicity and inquiries about possible newspaper stories are greeted with suspicion.

So, with $10 in hand, this skeptical reporter visited the recently opened South San Francisco palmistry and card reading studio of Madam Carla.

I am told by Madam Carla's daughter that a palm reading is $10 and a palm and card reading combined is $15. I had hoped for a crystal ball forecast but those kinds of readings just aren't done in this area anymore, she says.

It's a hot, breathless day and Madam Carla, attired in a long skirt drags herself up the stairs to welcome her next patron.

The tiny downstairs studio of the two-story house — probably once a garden supply closet — is nearly bare. Two chairs, a glass top table and a red rug are the simple furnishings.

Piled on the table is a deck of cards.

Madam Carla certifies her customer's age. Her use permit forbids her to serve persons under 18 years.

With formalities and introduction out of the way, she starts with a warning of sorts. She'll reveal both the good and the bad, she says.

She instructs her customer to take the $10, hold it between both hands and make two wishes.

Unprepared, I wrack my brain for the top two on my wish list. Unfortunately, my mind draws a blank.

With that part of the session out of the way, I stretch out my right palm and, embarrassed, notice a big ink blot across my heart or fate line or some other of those essential palm features.

It's at times like that I also wish I didn't bite my nails.

But Madam Carla is

undaunted. She looks at my palm about five seconds. No doubt she's seen some in worse shape than mine.

"You will have a long life — 82, 83 years," she promises. "You know what I'm saying?"

I inquire where my palm reveals that information and she points to the long line from wrist to an inch above the thumb.

I take another look at my hand. It's starting to look aging and wrinkled.

She continues to cite my lucky days — the 24th, 25th and 26th — and warns that this month is bad for investments. Fortunately, I have no money to invest, anyway.

I stare at my palm and then at Madam Carla. Her eyes are firmly focused on my face. I begin to wonder which lines she is reading.

"There are two men in your life. You know who they are?"

One, she said, I don't know but he has a receding hairline and will enter my life soon. The other is one I already know but her image of him is hazy.

Madam Carla predicts eventual success in employment. But she also predicts at least three children in my future and that I will face some strain in my job in coming months.

I begin to wish I'd tried Tarot cards instead.

The session is over in 10 minutes.

I leave with assurance of a long life, success and happiness despite a few setbacks — more than any psychologist could have revealed in one sitting on the couch.

Not bad for $10.

As for her predictions, I've got 60 years to find out if they'll come true and if I make it to that 82nd or 83rd year, it probably won't make a bit of difference.

Money Sought For Teachers

For the second time in as many months, teachers in the San Bruno Park School District Monday night presented the board of trustees with yet another plan for the district to raise sufficient revenue to hire back at least some of their recently fired colleagues.

The teachers, members of the San Bruno Education Association, called on the administration and the board to apply for available state and federal monies to fund two special programs.

The funds, if applied for and approved, the teachers maintained, would provide the district with the financial means to re-hire several of the recently dismissed 27 teachers.

Those re-instated teachers, the SBEA claimed, could be added back to the curtailed Educationally Handicapped program and also be used to instruct a new Severe Oral Language Handicapped class.

But as in the past, Nisiclin board members and reluctant administrators vowed only to review the report. They gave teachers no assurances that their plan would be implemented.

Dr. Robert Rottman, associate superintendent, told the teachers that the state and federal funds monies available to San Bruno would only partially fund the operation of the two special programs.

"We have never operated a special program where (state and/or federal) reimbursements have equalled the cost of the program," Dr. Rottman said.

"We would have to spend large sums of district money to get the programs going," he added, explaining further that the district cannot afford any large expenditures.

Last month the teachers pleaded with the trustees and administrators to seek some "positive alternatives" to the cuts in personnel and programs made by the board in April.

The teachers urged the trustees to use money the district would save when teachers and other district workers retired or resigned between May and September to hire back teachers who had been dismissed from the music, reading, educationally handicapped and other programs.

But Monday night District Business Manager Sherrill Houghton presented the board with a tentative 1976-77 budget totaling $6,700,500 that showed all money the district saved due to recent retirements and resignations, plus other new unexpected revenue had been plugged into a reserve account.

Houghton placed a total of $438,505 into that account, but he emphasized to trustees that nowhere in his over-all budget did he include any funds for employee salary increases.

He also noted that there was money in the budget for educational salary credits for teachers, longevity wage increases for classified employees or increases in health plans.

"If the board elects to grant any of these increases," said Houghton, "then the appropriations for contingencies (reserves) will be reduced accordingly."

Houghton's tentative budget for the next fiscal year is $444,492 less than this year's budget and reflects the teacher and program cutbacks approved by the board in April.

In a related matter, Robert Barron, district administrative assistant, presented a report that projected some 3,227 students would enroll in the district next September — 349 fewer students than enrolled last September.

As in all school districts, San Bruno receives state funds in proportion to the number of students who attend schools in the district.

Barron said that because enrollment is declining the district is overstaffed by some 14 regular classroom teachers.

Both he and Houghton pointed out that next year's tentative budget shows the number of certificated personnel was cut from 191 to 163.

Certificated employees include regular classroom teachers, special program teachers, librarians and nurses

Daly City Men Aid Teton Dam Relief Work

FOR A SWEET TOOTH

Pacifica cartoonist Tom Jackson poses with one of his statues and world's largest box of candy outside Periwinkle Art Gallery in Pacifica. The gallery purchased the 200-pound box of candy during the KQED auction to raise funds for the Music at the Gallery series. If you'd like a sample, the gallery invites you to drop by.

Two Daly City men last week had breakfast as usual, at home with their families, and dinner at a Red Cross mass feeding center in Idaho Falls, Idaho on June 6.

Sal Giammona and Bob Howard were among 65 trained Red Cross disaster workers from all over the country rushed to the scene of the Teton Dam break and flood.

Giammona, Red Cross Western Area Office (San Francisco) Assistant Manager in charge of administration, is providing logistics support for the extensive Red Cross Disaster Relief operation in Idaho.

He helped set up facilities for mass feeding, arranged for space where the Red Cross Disaster Assistance Centers could be set up throughout the flood area, handles the distribution of food and supplies and was instrumental in the procurement of cleanup and mass care supplies.

"Red Cross sees that these flood victims have a shovel in one hand to clean up their homes and a sandwich in the other to keep them going," said Giammona.

Bob Howard, Public Relations Director for Red

FLOOD RELIEF WORK

Sal Giammona, Red Cross Western Area Office Assistant Manager, worked on the logistics of relief work near the Teton Dam in Idaho, which burst. He helped set up a feeding program and supply distribution, among other things.

Golden Gate Chapter (San Francisco) and San Mateo Counties), is Public Relations Public Information Director for the Idaho Disaster Relief Operation.

Howard's primary job has been to inform individuals and families throughout the disaster area that Red Cross is there to assist with food, clothing, rent, transportation, medical care, cleaning and occupation supplies and to help meet other needs.

As Red Cross Disaster Assistance Centers are opened up, residents in each area are urged to come in for free help in meeting their needs.

Howard is also responsible for informing news media and Red Cross Chapters across the country about Red Cross Relief operations in Idaho.

Back home in Daly City, Giammona's wife Judy and sons Mark and Scott and Howard's wife Mary and children Rob, Barbara and Pam await the return of these two important Red Cross Disaster workers from another relief operation.

Red Cross officials estimate relief efforts will cost more than $2 million and $500,000 has already been spent.

Coupled with a catastrophic wave of disasters in Guam ($6.2 million spent) and Oklahoma, Mississippi and the outskirts of Chicago where tornadoes hit, the organization has geared itself to raising $10 million in voluntary contributions nationwide.

This is the most expensive disaster year in Red Cross history, they said, and the reserves are depleted.

Eleven Pass High School Proficiency Examination

Eleven of the 30 South San Francisco High School students who took the High School Proficiency exam March 27 passed.

According to principal George Hurley, the percentage rate — 36 per cent — is above the state average. It is 32 per cent.

Three of the 11 students have elected to drop out of high school to enroll in junior college or work.

The test is available to 16- and 17-year-olds.

The proficiency exam program offers a potential exemption from California's compulsory attendance law to those who can pass its test of basic skills, said Wilson Riles, state Superintendent for Public Instruction.

All other young persons in the state are required to stay in high school until they graduate regularly or turn 18, whichever occurs first.

Those passing the exam are awarded the Certificate of Proficiency, legally equivalent to a high school diploma. They may leave school immediately if they have their parents' or guardians' permission.

The minimum passing score is set at the performance level of the average graduating senior in California's high schools, Riles said.

The 32 per cent passing rate contrasts with the 45 per cent passing rate achieved by the 12,150 persons who took the exam at its first administration last December.

The test will be given again on Nov. 13, Riles said.

The program is directed by the California State Department of Education.

One would never guess that apparently conservative Pacifica — the ultimate bedroom community — would be so far ahead of its time in matters of sexism.

For example, in the fall semester of 1971, girls were taking shop courses at Terra Nova High School with barely a rumble from the local press, but months later, when girls wanted to take shop courses in Peninsula and San Francisco high schools and were being rebuffed by teachers and administration, those schools were making the television news programs.

Another example. Girls swimming on boys', or varsity teams two years ago in various California locations, were again making the airwaves, whereas Terra Nova had already had girls swimming on its varsity team since the year before.

Now, a couple of weeks ago, a story hit the wire services about a 13-year-old high school boy in San Bernardino who wanted to play on the Cajon High volleyball team, but wasn't allowed to because the school volleyball team is for girls only.

Johnny Flescher's father couldn't see the fairness in girls being allowed to try out for boys' teams, but not vice versa. The principal insisted that it wasn't a sexist ruling on the administration's part, but that he was merely following the rules as laid down by the California Interscholastic Federation.

Now, there is a big rumble, because Johnny, of course, has the federal government on his side in the form of one Esther Murillo, who is in charge of the school district's efforts to comply with Title IX, the federal sex discrimination regulations. She says the school must allow Johnny to try out for the team when next season rolls around.

So big deal! Terra Nova's "girls" badminton team started three boys this past spring semester.

We won't go as far as to say that no controversy was stirred up over the story, and will admit that the boys were allowed to play in only three practice games, but, again, Terra Nova might have opened up a significant can of worms which could have far-reaching implications.

Tom Peterson, sports editor of the school's national award-winning news-magazine, Tiger Tales, explained it all in a story which we will for most part paraphrase.

Ralf Konietzko, Mike Schrempf and Tim Jelinsky, all seniors, like to play badminton and, being red-blooded American boys, wished to play it competitively, rather than just choosing sides in the gym. Since there isn't a boys' badminton team at Terra Nova, they decided to try out for the girls' team.

Coach Sharon Sligar, reports Peterson, was "surprised, but didn't mind."

Said Konietzko, "Most of the girls were glad that we wanted to go out for the team. I don't think there was any dissension . . ."

So the boys played in three practice meets, Jelinsky and Schrempf as doubles partners, and Konietzko teaming up with one of the girls. All the matches in which the boys played were won. But then the league matches started and the boys couldn't compete against other North Peninsula League schools because it was against league rules.

Schrempf noted that this was a contradiction of Title IX. Jefferson Union High School District Supt. Floyd Gonella, an old jock (well, middle-aged jock) from Jefferson High, agreed. "I think the boys have as much right to compete against the girls as the girls have to compete in boys' sports."

"Every student should be allowed to compete where he or she desires, but there's a clause in the NPL rule book which states that boys aren't allowed to compete in girls' league matches because it was felt when the rules were drawn up that the boys' athletic program was broad enough and offered enough variety of sports."

Ah, but there's the rub. According to Schrempf, Jelinsky and Konietzko, the boys' athletic program at Terra Nova wasn't broad enough.

Although The Three, as Peterson referred to Schrempf, Jelinsky and Konietzko, have now graduated, Peterson, himself a senior, warns that there are other undergraduates ready to pick up the standard next school year.

There is, for instance, only one softball team at Terra Nova. It is made up entirely of girls. And it is an excellent team.

In fact, if memory serves, it has won three or four consecutive NPL titles and grabbed the Central Coast Sectionals this year.

Peterson reports that there are a lot of boys at Terra Nova who would like to play competitive softball for their school team. But there is no softball team for boys, and doesn't promise to be one in light of physical education department cutbacks in funds.

These boys, says Peterson, just may want to go out for the girls' team next year, and he doesn't see how more than a few girls will be able to win places on the squad. He says that during the last week of school, a pick-up team of boys from a P.E. class — none of whom play competitive baseball — challenged the Terra Nova girls' team to a game and absolutely wiped out the perennial NPL champs.

It all promises to be very interesting, and a real strain on the letter of Title IX.

IT SUDDENLY OCCURS to us that, even after the playoffs, the Warriors were the best team in pro basketball. Golden State, counting playoff games, finished with a 66-29 record, for a winning percentage of .695. Boston, after playoffs, was 66-34, .660.

LOVE TO READ back issues of The Sporting News, because it continually proves that hindsight can be wonderful or wretched, depending on how lucky the writer happened to be in that particular issue.

For example, the Reggie Jackson trade was a shocker to virtually everybody, but it shouldn't have been. A story by Jim Henneman in the January 10 issue of SN, states, "It was rumored that Finley was willing to part with Jackson if he could get pitcher Mike Torrez and outfielder Don Baylor."

Or, try the flip side, as they say. A headline over a story by Steve Hershey on Oct. 25, 1975, reads, "You Can Count on it — Bullets Will Retain Crown."

Hershey goes on to say things like, "Predicting that the Bullets will win their division is like saying that the price of gas is going up, the governor of Maryland is under investigation and Hubert Humphrey is eyeing the presidency . . ."

Gosh. Does this all mean that the price of gas will go down, that the governor of Maryland is actually honest, and that Hubert really will sit on his mouth at the convention?

FROM OUR USUALLY impeccable sources, we learn that Al Michaels will be leaving the Giants next year to take over the broadcast booth for the California Angels, taking the place of Don Drysdale, who will be leaving to take the place of Vin Scully at Dodger Stadium while Skully "retires" to network broadcasting. And, oh yes, Hank Greenwald will take Michaels' place.

LOCAL TAG-END — AGAIN — Our local tag-end last week reported that former Terra Nova hurler John Racanelli was picked up in the secondary draft by the Angels, but that John, as that was written, was still enrolled at USC. But now we learn that, as this is being written, Racanelli is probably indeed signing a contract with the Angels, and may already be with his first pro club in Davenport, Iowa, in the Mid-West League.

A full-length feature "A Man called Flintstone" will be shown next week at the Pacifica Community Centers.

The date for the movie will be as follows: Ortega School at 1:30 p.m. and Pedro Valley at 3 p.m. June 30; Pacific Manor at 1 p.m. and Westview at 3 p.m. July 1.

Parks: 'All We Can Handle'

The long-range cost of park upkeep is becoming a greater budgetary factor than park purchase, park directors of San Mateo County and its cities told the Regional Planning Committee Thursday night.

"We've got about all the parks we're going to get," one park boss told the RPC. "From now on we're going to be worrying about how to get the money to maintain them."

County Parks Director Jack Brooks said he had recently heard local jurisdictions are refusing

"gifts" of state and federal money which must be used only for purchase of park land and development of recreational sites — because they cannot afford to provide upkeep.

Listening to the parks and recreation report in preparation for their own policy statement due this fall, members of the RPC

asked how this changing condition would alter recreation operations.

Park bosses agreed that increased cooperation between city recreation departments, school districts, county park departments and regional or state park operations is a necessity.

In most cases, they suggested, cities will be expected to provide "ballfields and tennis courts and playgrounds," while the county concentrates on sites for picnicking and overnight use.

Some Openings In DC Tennis

Eureka Ups League Lead

Eureka Federal Savings of San Mateo solidified its Peninsula Joe DiMaggio League baseball lead at 7-2 Sunday with a double-header sweep (11-4 and 11-0) of San Bruno.

Also in DiMaggio play, Millbrae swept Lou's 66 of Pacifica (9-4 and 4-2), and Flying Goose of Daly City split with South San Francisco (9-1 SSF, 9-3 FG).

Winning pitcher Paul Fox collected five RBIs with a pair of home runs in Eureka's opening win against SB. Don Rush and Jeff Siragusa added two hits and two RBIs and Rob Roselli a pair of RBIs for Eureka.

In the nightcap, Brian Duffy blanked SB on two hits while striking out 12. John Sievers highlighted a seven-run Eureka explosion in the top of the seventh inning with a grand slam.

Mark Beauvais' two hits and two RBIs and Russ Slotnick's two RBIs paced Millbrae to its first game win against Lou's. Rick Sundberg tossed a seven-hitter for Millbrae in the second game.

Bob Humphrey fashioned a six-hitter and received offensive help from John Canepa (two-run triple) and Paul Bachold (two-run homer) as SSF dumped FG in their opener.

FG came back for a second game victory on the strength of two-run homers by Jerry McNeil and Tony Sebastiani and Greg Zanders' two-run double. McNeil had three hits and three RBIs.

San Mateo Takes Legion Loop Lead

San Mateo moved ahead of San Bruno in the District 26 American Legion baseball race by winning twice over the weekend while SB split a pair of contests.

Jeff Kahler and Jon Catalano each collected three hits as San Mateo (4-1) defeated Daly City on Saturday 11-2. That same duo contributed two hits apiece on Sunday as SM routed Pacifica 14-1.

San Bruno (3-1) topped Pacifica Saturday 9-4 but lost to Redwood City on Sunday 15-8.

Ottoboni Conspiracy Charge Quashed

By DUANE SANDUL
A judge Thursday tossed out a conspiracy charge in the Ottoboni voter fraud case because the district attorney's office failed to comply with the law in its presentation to the San Mateo County Grand Jury last February.

But Superior Court Judge Frank Piombo denied defense motions to quash 14 other counts against Colma Councilman Raymond D. Ottoboni, 71, his son Raymond J. Ottoboni, 34, and his mother, Mae, 69.

Defense attorneys Lois Scampini and Zerne P. Hanning II will decide next week whether to appeal Piombo's refusal to quash the entire indictment.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Stanley B. Poling said that he presently does not intend to appeal the judge's ruling which quashed the conspiracy count.

In any event, the trial date was set back two weeks to July 26. And that date may be vacated, as Miss Scampini, who represents the parents, said that she will move to sever the trials.

The Ottobonis are charged with several felonies and misdemeanors stemming from an alleged scheme to falsely register four persons last winter to vote in the March municipal election for Raymond Ottoboni, who was seeking a return to the city council.

According to witnesses before the Grand Jury, Ottoboni junior was seeking to oust the present police chief, James Dorris, and to form a block to "run Colma as they wished."

He lost in that March election by one vote.

Judge Piombo quashed the conspiracy charge because Poling failed to present to the Grand Jury tape recordings made by police agents of discussions between the Ottobonis which the law describes as "exculpatory."

The California Supreme Court ruled several months ago that a district attorney must present to grand juries evidence which might suggest innocence as well as alleged guilt.

According to Hanning and Scampini, police agents taped conversations between the Ottobonis in the present of undercover agents.

Among those tape conversations, Raymond Ottoboni, a deputy registrar of voters, repeatedly assured his parents that steps they were taking to register voters were proper and legal, court records revealed.

Those tapes were not presented to the Grand Jury.

"The court feels that the statements were made early in the alleged conspiracy, and that they have significant impact on whether there was an intent to break the law," Piombo said Thursday in his verbal ruling.

"To have a conspiracy, you must have intent. The Grand Jury should have been given this evidence," Judge Piombo concluded.

But he refused to quash the other indictment counts involving the alleged voter fraud because the intent question was not involved.

Poling told The Times that he didn't present the tapes to the grand jury because he hadn't had time to listen to all of them, and "those I had were unintelligible."

The prosecutor said that there were 14 hours of tapes.

Hanning and Scampini, on the other hand, made for the court a printed record of the tape's contents, and in his ruling Piombo noted that Poling was aware of the tapes.

Poling said that Piombo's decision "doesn't weaken our case because we're allowed to present their statements if conspiracy is charged or not. It doesn't make a lot of difference. All of the substantive charges remain."

Conversely, Hanning said that Judge Piombo quashed the "biggest" count against the Colma family.

Accident Victim Succumbs

James Clifford, 21, of 1211 Toyon Drive, Millbrae, who suffered massive head injuries in an accident near Santa Rosa June 15, died at Mills Pavilion East early Friday morning, the coroner's office reported.

He lived with his mother, Virginia.

Visitor Increase Told

With a 203 percent increase over last year, San Mateo County Convention and Visitors Bureau has already booked 26 groups in 1976 for a total of 12,565 room nights and a dollar impact to local business of over $4½ million, according to John Steen, bureau director.

In addition, Steen reports 15 new members and 24 renewals have been signed by the bureau to boost its work fund to $3,350, 24 percent better than last year, money which is used to assist multiple bureau programs and sales efforts.

The bureau's 98.6 percent "renewal retention" is considered a record in this type of organization.

Jim O'Connor, bureau president, says "we hope to have enough restaurant members to produce a "Dining and Restaurant Guide to San Mateo County."

Council to Audit South SF Costs

The South San Francisco City Council has decided to re-solicit proposals from auditing firms — this time with a more specific management study in mind.

Since March, the council has been wrestling with plans to have a different kind of audit conducted in the city this year.

Councilman William Borba — who was elected in March — had asked that an "in-depth audit" be conducted this year instead of the annual general audit.

Borba has refused to publicly explain why.

Last Monday night the council decided that the proposals submitted by 12 auditing firms ranging from $8,500 to $15,000 do not reflect the kind of audit Borba wants.

While three councilmen — Leo Padreddi, Terry Mirri and Emanuele Damonte — are on vacation in Italy until July 21, Borba will meet with city staff and develop specifications for the audit.

Letters will be sent to auditing firms asking the cost of such an "in-depth" or management audit.

In July or August the council will review the proposals.

Councilman Richard Battaglia moved that the council reject all proposals and authorize the annual general audit conducted for 22 years by Gus Chagaris of South San Francisco.

The council, he said, should work out specifications for an in-depth audit if it wants one conducted.

He said that with the city's top three management personnel gone, it would be unwise to conduct a management audit at this time.

The council has fired City Manager Ed Alario and does not expect to hire a new manager until September. Assistant City Manager Mike Wilson is on a six-month leave of absence. The council also fired Director of Finance Stan Bara and does not plan to replace him.

"With the top three people responsible for management of this city gone, I don't think it would be proper to take on a new auditor," Battaglia said.

Battaglia said if there is an urgency to conduct an "in-depth audit" because of possible illegal or fraudulent activity, Borba should disclose that need.

"I am still not sure what he (Borba) wants," Battaglia said.

Borba, who was silent through most of the discussion said his request has one meaning — "a full search."

At one point, Borba asked for an executive session.

"I'll give an inkling of what I'm looking for but I won't go into it in public," Borba said. City Atty. John Noonan said an executive session for that purpose would be improper.

Borba wanted to select an auditor Monday night, insisting that at least one of the firms would conduct the audit he wants for the amount he had bid.

Other councilmen were not convinced. They recalled auditing firms saying at a prior meeting that such an audit would cost up to $20,000.

Former councilman Frank Mammimi warned the council that a management audit in Orange County cost $335,000.

"You better find out what you want or we will go bankrupt on an audit," Mammimi said.

Mammimi has repeatedly protested council's plans to hire an auditor to do an "in-depth" study without stating precisely for what the council or Borba is searching.

"Right now everything is hanging up here in limbo and no one knows what you are looking for," he said.

Mayor Leo Padreddi responded that the council has had enough of Mammimi's input and will decide what it's going to do.

Finance Officer William Anderson has requested that the council select an audit firm to conduct a general audit and determine after that audit is completed if it desires something more in-depth.

Anderson said reports to the state controller must be submitted in February and it would be helpful if the audit figures are in before then.

The council decided against that advice.

Councilmen did agree it would be healthy for the city to change auditors as is done frequently in many cities.

Pacifica Set to Complete Budget

At least one more study session will be held before the Pacifica City Council adopts its $5.9 million 1976-77 budget.

The council met early last week for three hours and agreed to meet again today.

It already has held two weekend sessions and expects to adopt its budget as early in July as possible.

The council reviewed a proposal by Councilman Nick Gust that would have added $685,511 to the budget. Gust's proposal included eliminating emergency services funding and assigning those duties to the fire chief to save $18,723; deleting an accountant's position, saving $12,472; deleting an automotive serviceman position, $11,000; and deleting an associate planner position, $17,000.

Gust also asked that the council delete from the proposed budget a request by City Manager Don Weidner for a budget and fiscal officer, a new staff position budgeted at $21,900.

The council accepted only one suggestion of Gust's — to reduce the motorpool mechanical budget by $20,000. This will probably be done, Weidner said, by eliminating the presently vacant position of supervisor of mechanics.

Although the council had previously considered dropping Weidner's request for a budget and fiscal officer, council members indicated they still weren't certain and asked that the position be retained in the budget for the time being.

Police Seek Reports On Suspicious Calls

San Bruno Police are investigating reports of suspicious telephone calls being made to residents in the North County.

According to Police Chief Russell Cunningham, unknown persons reportedly are telephoning homes and asking residents if their houses are equipped with any backup devices should there be an electrical power failure.

"Naturally," said Cunningham, "in practically all instances the resident states that his home is not equipped for such an emergency."

The caller then asks, the chief reported, if the resident will be at home in the evening so that an inspection of the home can be made and recommendations for emergency equipment can be offered.

The chief said that in all cases when the resident said he would be at home, nobody called at the house.

The chief said he believes the conversation about the emergency electric supply and the appointment are only bits of conversation and that actually inquiry is being made to determine if the house will be vacant and thus a likely target for a burglary.

It has been learned that the Pacific Gas and Electric co. office in San Bruno is not involved in the inquiries.

The chief requests persons receiving suspicious telephone calls to contact the police department.

Firecracker Sales Arrest

A Daly City man has been arrested and more than $1,000 worth of illegal fireworks confiscated by Brisbane police at a local flea market.

The arrest Sunday of David Clark Czerwinski, 28, of 381 Bellevue Ave., Daly City, culminated several weeks of undercover work by fire investigator Tom Cerri, police said Tuesday.

Except for "safe and sane" fireworks, all other pyrotechnic materials are illegal for sale in San Mateo County, police explained.

The flea market where Czerwinski allegedly sold the fireworks to undercover agents is at the end of Tunnel Road in Brisbane.

Board Vacancy Stirs Varied Interests

By JANET PARKER

A vacancy on the San Mateo Community College District Board of Trustees is prompting concern that a new kind of representative should be appointed.

Most concerned are administrators and faculty at 7-year-old Skyline College who say the North County deserves representation on the Board of Trustees.

Others, however, are asking that the position be filled with the board's first minority person, and still others are asking that an individual from the South County be named.

The Board of Trustees plans to select by Sept. 1 a replacement for Trustee Francis Pearson, who resigned effective that date.

Pearson, a certified public accountant who lives in Redwood City and a trustee for 14 years, cited a conflict between new financial disclosure laws and the ethics of his profession as his reason for resigning.

The appointee will have to run for election in March if he or she hopes to stay on the board.

Elio Fontana of Colma was appointed to the board in late 1969 and served a little more than a year until he was defeated in a 1971 election by James Tormey Jr.

Prior to that time, North County representation consisted of Raymond Whitney from the Coastside, who served from 1957 to 1963, and a Daly City resident, U.R. Kendree, 20 years ago.

District officials cannot recall having had a single minority representative on the board in the district's history.

Dr. John Petersen, Skyline College president, said he believes the board is sensitive to the need for a representative on the board from one of the North County cities.

"It's something that has been felt strongly by everyone here for some time," Petersen said. "I suspect this is a concern of the trustees also."

Petersen said 40 per cent of the county's population lives north of Millbrae and yet all the remaining trustees live in San Mateo or Hillsborough.

There are a number of elements — including demographics and politics — which make the North County quite different from the central or South County, Petersen said.

Pat Manning, American Federation of Teachers president, said he agrees that the trustees should look at the kinds of representation missing on the board.

"The North County is very seriously underrepresented," Manning said.

Manning, however, said the board should hold a special election to elect Pearson's replacement.

"The question of the cost of an election is more than balanced by having a representative trustee," he said.

Board President Tormey said the board has already made up its mind to appoint a replacement, avoiding the costs of a special election or a late election in November on the presidential ballot.

However, he said the board members recognize the different representation various factions are seeking.

One of the considerations all of us have is that there will be neither a North or a South County representative on the board with the retirement of Fran Pearson," Tormey said. "It is a consideration that we are aware of."

Tormey said he has submitted his list of recommended criteria for selection of a board member to the other trustees.

He would not say what the criteria include.

Board members, he said, have heard community concerns that a new trustee should come from the north, the south, that the trustee should be a minority, and that the position should be filled by a woman.

Presently, Eleanore Nettle is the only woman on the board.

"We are not looking for someone to represent just one segment of the community," he said. "The board has done its best to keep a countywide orientation."

Some district personnel are concerned that the timing of the school board election contributes to the pattern of electing a Central County person.

The election is held in March of odd years at the same time as the San Mateo City Council election. As a result, a great number of the votes cast are from San Mateo.

Tormey said board members realize the problem in holding the board election at the same time as the City Council election. However, the state mandates that cities and school districts with elections in the same year must hold their elections simultaneously, he said.

Any change in that procedure would have to come from the state legislature.

That's a concern of us, too," Tormey said.

A minority rights advocate in the district, Canada College dean of instruction Sam Ferguson, said the county in general has been making great progress in minority representation.

He pointed out the appointment of a black woman as Crestmoor High School principal and the selection of a black man as Sequoia Unified School District superintendent.

Having a Third World person at that (district) level would be an excellent choice," he said. "It would be saying, 'Hey, we are sensitive to your needs.'"

He said 20 per cent of the county's population is minority and a minority board member would provide identity for that group.

Zelte Crawford, College of San Mateo ethnic studies chairman, said the board has been insensitive to the minority community and for years the minority community has been trying to get a minority on the board.

In the 1975 board election for three seats, black attorney Phrasel Shelton came in fourth of the six candidates. He received 28,000 votes, 10,000 less than the top vote-getter, Eleanore Nettle.

Pearson, whose resignation accounts for the board vacancy, said he hopes the board will choose a South County person as his replacement so that area won't lose its representation.

He also said that election to the board by district in the same manner as the County Board of Supervisors would be a "great idea" allowing for board members directly elected from five different areas of the county.

Crossings Rated Low in State Priority

Grade crossings at Southern Pacific tracks at Broadway in Burlingame and at Holly Street in San Carlos have been given low priority by the state Public Utilities Commission and probably will not be built for some time.

A total of 85 projects with an estimated construction cost of $327,911,000 was submitted this year.

On a list of 80 crossings, the Broadway crossing was placed 13th while Holly Avenue was 17th.

Hot-Day Salad

Good morning, good cooks.
On these hot days (I hope it's still hot when the column appears, since nothing is more changeable than the weather, who knows?) a cool molded salad would make a delightful addition to a meal.

LIME-FRUIT MOLD

1 pkg. lime gelatin, small size

- 1 cup hot water
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 2 Tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 cup seedless grapes
- 1 cup peeled diced apple
- 1/4 cup chopped nuts

Dissolve the one package gelatin in the one cup hot water. Add the half cup cold water, half cup mayonnaise, two tablespoons lemon juice and fourth teaspoon salt. Blend with rotary beater. Pour into freezer tray and freeze about 20 minutes or until icy about one-inch around edge of tray, but still soft in center. Pour into mixing bowl and beat until light and fluffy.

Add the three-fourths cup grapes, one cup apples and one-fourth cup chopped nuts. Pour into mold. Refrigerate two or more hours. Unmold and serve. Serves six.

Along with this cool salad why not serve an easy combination of pork chops and potatoes?

Big Teen Dance Set

July 2 at Terra Nova High School from 8:30-11:30 p.m. all teens are invited to jam to the sounds of "Savory."

Lead singer Jim Starr and his Savory group are stopping by Pacifica for one night of explosive music in the middle of a tour that has taken them into the Sheridan, Hilton Holiday, Airport Marina, Candlestick Park, U.C. Berkeley and Stanford.

Pacificans Hit Transit District Bus Fares

By RICK SULLIVAN

A group of disgruntled Pacificans criticized directors of the San Mateo County Transit District this week for establishing a fare structure they say "discourages ridership."

Firecrackers Injure Two

Two persons — an unidentified Redwood City woman and a Coastside man — were injured by firecrackers during the weekend.

A young woman was hurt when a firecracker was thrown at her late Saturday night at the American Legion Hall on El Camino Real, Redwood City police reported. Officers were looking for a man about 20 to 30 years of age with black medium-length hair and dressed in a red jacket.

Homer L. Rombeau, 44, a salesman of 179 Del Monte St., El Granada, told sheriff's deputies he was driving north on Cabrillo Highway when someone in a passing car threw a pack of firecrackers. They exploded behind his back, burning him slightly and damaging his shirt and the seat of his car. Damage was estimated at $95.

Specifically, the Coastside residents chided directors for increasing bus fares for youth by 15 cents beginning July 1.

On that date SamTrans is scheduled to consolidate municipal transit operations and initiate countywide bus service. Fares established by city bus services will be dropped and the district's uniform fare policy will go into effect.

Several months ago, the directors set fares for rides on all district buses at 25 cents for riders 7 years and older and 10 cents for senior citizens and the handicapped. Children under 7 will ride free.

That fare structure overrides one approved by the Pacifica City Council last year which allows passengers under the age of 18 to ride buses for a dime.

Pacificans, meeting in the city council chambers Wednesday, warned the directors that elimination of the youth fare will force parents to transport their children by car and will encourage additional hitchhiking.

You are discouraging youth from riding buses and this is going to increase the rate of hitchhiking," Coastside resident Betty Wilson told the directors.

"I can run my own car to shuttle my family cheaper than I can ride the bus if you drop the youth fare," another Pacifica resident complained.

During the summer both my parents work and the only way I'm going to be able to get around is by use of the bus," a youth exclaimed. "I won't be able to afford your higher fare."

At the request of Robert Norris, Chairman of the Transit District Board, District General Manager John T. Mauro explained to the unhappy Pacificans why the fares were changed.

Mauro said the district had been charged with merging all municipal bus services in the county to improve the service between cities as well as within cities.

He said in fairness to all county residents, the directors had adopted a fare structure "which is uniform and applies to all riders throughout the county — regardless of age or economic circumstances."

The general manager also explained that the district needed the uniform, and in some cases higher, fares to generate from the fare box $1.2 million or 25 per cent of the district's operating budget.

If this money is raised, Mauro said, county taxes would not have to be increased to subsidize the transit operation.

Mauro further explained that reduced fares would be available in the form of a monthly permit which would cost $5 and entitle the purchaser to an unlimited number of rides for one month.

The permit, he said, could be used by any member of a family.

Mauro's explanation failed to pacify the angry group.

Grady Hesters, a Laguna Salada School District trustee, remarked:

The people of Pacifica are angry and bitter. They resent the fact that the minute a bus operation is taken over by a larger district prices go up.

Your purpose," he pointedly told the directors "is not to balance your budget through the fare box, but to make a transportation service work and you are defeating that."

Two representatives of the Jefferson Union High School District, Hal Tonini, deputy superintendent and Ruth Boudinot, president of the district board, echoed Hesters' concerns.

"Our district is very proud of our work experience and volunteer work programs. Many of these students use the buses and we are greatly concerned that your rate increase will severely limit our students' ability to service the community," Tonini said.

And Pacifica Mayor Janice Fulford, who told the board the City Council had unanimously urged the district to reinstate the youth fare, added:

When our eight buses were introduced into Pacifica, it gave me extreme pleasure because it was one of the best things to ever happen to our youth."

She said when the council established the youth fares it was one of the few instances "when young people were wholly satisfied with what government had provided them."

Transit Job for Lumley

Aubrey Lumley, former Pacifica councilman and a former member of the San Mateo County Transit District (SamTrans) Board of Directors, has been hired by the district to promote sales in the county.

SamTrans General Manager John Mauro said he feels Lumley possesses the qualifications needed to successfully accomplish the job of setting up bus permit distribution centers, establishing an accounting and auditing system, and promoting group sales in the county.

The Peninsula-wide sales network will primarily concern itself with the sale of reduced fare permits, according to Mauro.

Lumley failed in his bid for re-election to the Pacifica City Council last March.

At the time, he was co-chairman of the SamTrans Board and was forced to resign the position.

He (Lumley) was very involved in district activities and I found him to be dedicated to the district," Mauro said.

Lumley had been credit manager for American Forest Products Corp. and is a Fellow of the National Institute of Credit of New York, it was noted.

"I know Lumley and I know he has all the qualifications to do the job expected of him," Mauro said, adding, "We could have hired a consultant at a lot more money. I feel (Lumley) will do the best possible job for the district."

The action was taken by Mauro himself, and not the board. Policies of the district delegate hiring authority to Mauro.

Lumley will be working out of the SamTrans office in San Mateo. He will be paid $9.50 an hour for an unspecified period of time, but not to exceed three months, Mauro indicated.

New fare structures, which can considerably reduce the cost of riding a SamTrans bus, are scheduled to go into effect on July 1.

Marketing plans of the district call for permits to be sold at perhaps 50 to 100 municipal offices, retail stores, schools, colleges and similar locations throughout the county.
